

Historical Marker - L2077 - The Chene House (Marker ID#:L2077)

Front - Title/Description

The Chene House

Wells D. Butterfield and his daughter Emily (the state's first licensed woman architect) designed this house for Edward and Evelyn Chene. The house was built in 1927 as part of "The Oaklands," one of the first subdivisions in Farmington Township. The Great Lakes Land Development Company hired the Butterfields to plan the community with small "estate sized" houses, tennis courts, ornamental lakes, and putting greens. The project failed due to the Great Depression.
